

WORRIED ABOUT NUISANCE CALLS?

The City of London Police are reaching out to local residents to understand the volume of nuisance calls they are receiving so they can help.

The force has partnered up with trueCall, who provide technology able to block unwanted scam calls, and have a number of call blocker units available for the Square Mile's most in need residents.

These small call blocker units are designed for landline phones and can help screen out calls from fraudsters who are preying on the most vulnerable members of our community.

They are easy to install and each person can create a 'trusted number list', so calls from friends and family still go through as normal.

If you live in the City of London and are interested in receiving a call blocker unit, please contact us. Due to coronavirus restrictions, this phone number is currently directed to a voicemail service. Please leave your name, contact number and state the reference "Call Blocker Project" and someone will call you back at the earliest opportunity.
